2 days | 125 green start-ups | 53 countries | global climate impact
Amsterdam, The Netherlands | 14-15 November

The global green business ideas competition ClimateLaunchpad is set up to help aspiring entrepreneurs grow their cleantech ideas into global businesses. This year

2,600 ideas were entered in 53 participating countries. National winners will now pitch their sustainable ideas in the 2019 Global Grand Final in Amsterdam, November 14-15.

The programme is packed with master classes and keynotes by leading minds in the green field like Marjan Minnesma who took the Dutch government to court to demand more effective action against climate change. And won. Twice.

Other speakers include:

Constantijn van Oranje - Special Envoy TechLeap.NL

Lisa Ann Pinkerton - Founder & President at Technica Communications

Beth Gardiner - Environmental journalist

Jop Blom - Impact accelerator

And of course you get to witness over 125 sustainable start-ups from 53 countries pitch their socks off. Step into the future where big data eliminates crop failure, clean water is cheaply available to all and glue is made from algae. A future filled with solutions.
